VICKERS-VIMY PLANE LANDING IN IRELAND.

After non-stop flight across the Atlantic it lit on its nose, turning tail toward the sky and severely shaking up the two aviators, Brown and Alecock. But exultation at the successful climax of their daring achievement made them forget the cuts and the bruises.

SANCTUARY

The Charity of the Church Toward the Unfortunate and Persecuted.

The Right of Asylum as Practiced in the Middle Ages.

Defense of Fugitives Against the Power of Mighty and Unjust.

WAS WHOLESOME INSTITUTION.

In the Irish Theological Quarterly Claude C. H. Williamson contributes some information on the right of sanctuary. This right, or the right of asylum, consisted in the privilege enjoyed by all those persecuted justly or unjustly of flying to a church, where they obtained for themselves immunity against capture or violence of any sort on the part of their pursuers; they enjoyed this privilege while they remained in the place held sacred. In the mean while the priests or bishops used their influence to secure justice for them, to calm the passion of the pursuer—an effect which was greatly favored by time itself. For frequently while the persecuted person enjoyed the safety of the asylum the passion of the persecutor subsided of its own accord. The bulk of the article by Williamson is devoted to rulings and incidents transpiring during the late Middle Ages, the twelfth century and after, and is confined largely to England. As a matter of fact, however, the chief value of the right of asylum was realized most in the earlier centuries and particularly during the formative period of the early Middle Ages, in the Frankish kingdom on the continent.

These are many Socialists and others, enemies of the church, who on all possible occasions accuse her of having done nothing and of doing nothing for the persecuted and downtrodden and the victims of absolutist power. Just how unwarranted such an accusation is is evident from the institution of the right of sanctuary, the value of which is apparent to any objective student of history. "Fugitives and victims of persecution found a place of refuge and salvation in the churches and the homes of the Bishops," writes Dr. Joseph Fehr in his book on State and Church in the Frankish kingdom to the time of Charlemagne, "without discrimination as to their social condition." And as the same author points out, "at a time when the wildest passions of revenge tempestuously demanded expression, protection against them needs must have been of the greatest beneficial results."

Some of the incidents cited by the author illustrate both the sacredness with which the sanctuary was regarded and the forceful assertion of the right by bishops and priests against the arbitrary passions and demands of those in power. When Duke Gunthramm-Boso was under suspicion of being responsible for the death of Theodebert, son of King

President of Irish Republic Guest of Honor at Saturday Banquet.

CABLE MESSAGE TO THE POPE.

Election of officers and a banquet at which Eamonn De Valera, President of the Irish republic, was the guest of honor Saturday night, closed the national convention of the Ancient Order of Hibernians of the United States and Canada and its Ladies' Auxiliary.

Judge James E. Deery, Indianapolis, was elected National President, succeeding Joseph McLaughlin, former Congressman from Philadelphia. Mrs. Mary F. McWorther, Chicago, was re-elected President of the Ladies' Auxiliary. Other officers elected were:

National Vice President—Richard Dwyer, Boston;
Vice President for Canada—Peter J. Doyle, Montreal;
Secretary—John O'Dea, Philadelphia.

Treasurer—John Sheehy, Montgomery, Minn.
Directors—William Boyle, San Francisco; Joseph A. Daly, Washington; John V. McCarthy, Syracuse, N. Y.; John J. O'Connor, Kansas City, Mo.; P. E. Sullivan, Portland, Oregon.

In addition to President, the Ladies' Auxiliary elected the following:

Vice President—Mrs. Adele Christie, Cleveland.
Secretary—Mrs. Susan McNamee, Charlestown, Mass.
Treasurer—Miss Margaret McQuade, Pittsburgh.
Director—Mrs. Mary Arthur, Indianapolis.

A resolution protesting against the League of Nations covenant because of provisions therein alleged to be detrimental to a free and independent Ireland was adopted by the auxiliary.

Eulogy of Ireland and of the aspirations for freedom of government in Ireland were the dominant notes of speeches that opened the annual convention of the Ancient Order of Hibernians in America and Canada. Greetings to the delegates came in messages from United States Senators James and Phelan, Archbishop O'Connell of Boston, and a committee was appointed to draft a message to Pope Benedict XV. at Rome, asking his blessing on the work of the convention.

Preparations for the coming to San Francisco of Eamonn De Valera, President of the Irish Republic, overshadowed all else at the early sessions of the Ancient Order. Plans were formulated for a special train to carry to Sacramento a delegation of Hibernians and the Ladies' Auxiliary to greet De Valera and his party
